5 Benefits of Using The Combine for Your AgTech Startup

01

Mentorship from Industry Experts

One of the biggest advantages of The Combine is access to a network of experienced industry experts with years of experience in agriculture, business, and technology. When joining the Combine, startups gain access to a dedicated group of ag producers known as the Insights Network.

02

Access to Early-Stage Investors

The Combine also provides startups with access to capital and early-stage investors. During the program, startups have the opportunity to pitch their ideas to investors and secure funding to help grow their businesses.

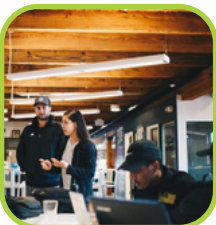

03

Community of AgTech Entrepreneurs

The Combine is not just a program; it's a community. By participating in The Combine, startups gain access to a supportive community of AgTech entrepreneurs who are facing similar challenges and opportunities.

04

Validation of Your Product and Business Model

Another major advantage of The Combine is the opportunity to validate your product and business model. Through The Combine's Insights Network, companies are connected to ag producers to help with testing their products.

05

Access to an Incubator Space

The Combine provides companies in their program with access to a creative working space. Upon being admitted into The Combine Incubator, companies will have access to the Combine space, including private offices, hot desks, a conference room, and so much more.
